per We have the pleasure of presenting from our New York corresponded at 189 expect to be able to furnish a paries e interrecting communications :-New York, Oct. 19, 1850.

Ma. Borres ; In my last I mentioned that the American Institute was holding its annua fair ; as manal, there is a little of every thing exhibited ; among the articles, I recognized many that have been acquaintences of ten vere standing .- a certain patchwork quilt, of Daniel Lambert capacity, yune, all occupies a conspicuous position and tooks as young as ever. The sight of that quilt, always made me inclancholy one could not help commiserating the state of hopeless old-maidism to which the maker none have been reduced, and how intense ly aganizing must have been, her situation ere and could have sat down, and deliber-ately contemplated the manufacture of such a complicated production! why! Arachue, if the poor soul was living, would not have ventured to contest the palm with the ninker of that quilt. There is also an artificial leg, in a glass case, which has lost none of its symmetry; although a dizen the Public: I well remember how, in my innocence. I was wont to consider it perfeetious a pattern leg instruct; since then I have looked on Power's Greek Slave, and In the Herticultural department, are the same gigantic Beets, prodifficus Pumpkins, and evergrown Turnips, as of old, the Flower and Fruit stands are as tempting as sever to the eye and palled. For a taste of the Grapes from Crojon point, Baschus would have reliegished all claim to the beautiful Miss Arisdne, which, to be sure, is apeaking within bounds, consider ing the equivocal manner in which he made hur acquaistance.

The entrance to the Clarden is crowded with agricultural implements, that exhibit a marked improvement over previous years: the Connection Yankees have sent a regiment of little labor-saving machines, which if one half that is said of them be true, bld fair to abrogate the surse pronounced by the most : High on disobedient man. The who has a take for hour moretion from count of their clattering combinations. After watching a pin machine for bulf an hour, and finding myself, at the expiration of that time, as much mystified as ever, I transferred my attention to a Sausage-stuffer, in the contemplation of which the evening glided impresentibly away.

There was the very Devil to pay at Si. Mask's Church last Sunday ofternoon : a the congregation were dismissed, and we had all soberly vacated our seats, and reached the vestibule, C-ra-s-h, the supyears, sainle and sinners, grave and gay, years, saidle and sinners, grave and gay, years, and old, squirming and writhing in the celler, like a basket of sels; a ladder was procural, and all were extricated with out serious lajury ; the majority being more frightened than hurt. In the midst of the , confusion, while panting under the united weight of an old gentleman and his wife, who were composedly seated on my chest, my eye, in wild frenzy rolling, caught sight of a famale head, aged about forty, more or less, who had lost its bonnet, and its wig ; in despite of my painful situation, I found myself repeating, (mentally of coarse) the love-song of the Phrenologist, commencing as follows :---

ist, commencing as somewa; —
"When first I gazed upon thy head, Directed of concealing hair,—"
I traced the organs o'ur it apread,
And fixed my sandering wishes there.
For well I saw thou hade't a mind

I had got thus far, when the e'derly couple before mentioned, discovered that their pedal extremities were uninjured, and e of their exces sive weight; the head also disappeared being enveloped in the folds of a erape shawl, and then came my turn at the ladde and I at once relapsed into my habitual antier self-peasession.

In the name of that down-trodden patrial, Thomas W Dare,-who is "oas the appreceed," whose communication, anathemotizing the Pagitive Slave Bill, 1 notice to your paper of the 10th, ! Its style is "sot particularly neat, but it's strong," as the old Hoy said when he mended his breeches with a rope ; I doubt it fone of the oppressed" has ever read the Bill be picks at. He reems to have just made the astouring discovery, that hy it, "trial by jury is amothered, and write of that the act of 1708 was equally obnoxious on these two points? The grand objection in the present Law appears to arise from the fact of its being enforced, -there lies the whole secret of the wild gualings of reserved of the oppressed . I would suggest s should read both acts, and then asif he can, (provided they were enforced) that the one of 98 would afford greater protection to the fegitive than the cent Law, which is causing such great agilition throughout the Northern States. As I write, I can appreciate the autumin feeling, - something holy, and peculiar provuiting within me. I can see by the increasing szuze of the sky, and by the calarged clearness of the distant landscapes. when the eye greets them, from the city, and by the transparent briskness of the air at evening, that the summer has gone and the adjumn time begun. The woodlands stand in calm solemnity, robed in that ininhave coloring, the herald of their tollen honors, and the November storm, at each a season, the heart goes back as on the wings of a dove, to departed friends and vanished come up include review,"-so wrote the lamented "Oliaped," and what breast possessing a heart does not echo to the sentimen! October is to me the saddest month of all; November is wild and dreary; Decomber, storn, relentless, -- but its very haraliness provokes resistance, and we are merry in spite of its cold face; but Ocio ber is sad, and, every thing is dying, and beautiful in death. October teaches man a solemn lesson, if he would but road aright; the withering grass and faded flowers are but etal kms of man's kindred doom; our friends, the luved and dear ones, are gone, our own life-moments are, passing away, one, by one, like falling . leaves, and we must koon aland, stripped and baro, in the presence of that great Being, before whom, all nations are as nothing, and they are counted to him less than nothing and vani-Thino,

THE MOST SCOUNDRELLY SWINDLE OF THE AGE .There is one kind of swindling extensively practised in this oity, which challenges far more rigilant attention than it has yet received. Readers of the smaller papers must have of ten noticed advertisements headed "500 girls wanted to work on shirts," or other articles of clothing. These ad vertisements strike the eyes of the many poor females of our city who are in destitute circumstances and out of work, and they apply at the places indicated for the work thus offered .-They are told that a deposite of one dollar is required as a guarantee for the safe return of the garment. This deposite is made, and the cloth is taken to be made into shirts at a sixpence each. In due lime they are returned, and the girls are told to come next day after their work has been examined. They go next day for their pay, and ure then. told that their work was not well done, that the cloth was spoiled, that they cannot have their pay and that the dollar which they deposited will be kept to pay for the cloth which they have spoiled 1. Thus, these men get the work for nothing, and get a dollar besides; and next day they advertise so but it must be asked. MISS JENNY LIND'S CHARRY CON-CERT. The following has been handed into us as a list of the institutions, among which Miss Lind has been advised to bestow the proceeds of her charity concert. We understand that considerable difficulty was felt in making the selection from the new out. fund would do more good, if not very greatly subdivided. The gentlemen consulted by her fully concurred in this opinion. They were duly sousible to the merit of many excellent institutions not included in the list, and regretted that it was not in their power to make it more extensive. It contains those, which, after much and auxious deliberation, appeared to them, all things transidered, to be entitled to be recommended.

To find one who has passed through life without sorrow, you must find one incapable of love or hatred, of hope and fear-one that hathno memory of the past, and no thought of the tuture-one that bath no sympathy with humanity, and no feelings in common with the rest of his species.

Uron examining the edge of the aliarpest razor with a microscope, it will appear fully as broad as the back of a knife-rough, uneven and full of notches and farrows. An exceedingly small needle resembles an iron bar,-But the sting of a bee seen through the same instrument, exhibits everywhere the most beautiful polish without the least flaw, blemish, or inequality, and it ends in a point too fine to be discerned. The threads of a fine lawn seem coarser than the yarn with which ropes are made for anchors. But a silk worm's web appears perfectly emonth and shining and every where equal .-The smallest dot that is made with a pen, appears irregular and uneven .-But the little specks on the wings or bedies of insects, are found to be the most accurate circle. How magnificent is the system of nature Who made the little Flowers ! The Atheist in his garden stood

At twilight's pensive how, Ille little daughter by his side, Was gazing on a flower.

"Oh pick that blossom, Pa, for me," The little prattler said; "It is the fairest one that blooms Within the lowly bed."

And gave it to the child-With parted lips and eparkling eye, She reized the gift and smiled.

aOh, Pa—who made this pretty flower, This little violet blue; And such a lively hee?"

A change came o'er the fither's brow; His eyes grew strangely wild; New thoughts within him had been stire'd By that sweet artiess child.

The truth flashed on her father's mind-The truth in all its power; "There is a God, my child," he said; "He made that little flower."

"Whatis your age, miss," inquired alant marshal of a young lady about six-While the district the other day. said the fair one drawing up and exhibiting a formidable chevaux de frize of broken teeth. "It is a' very compleasant question place you at !-twenty, I should think "-"Yes," sain the old girl, completely mollified, "I think I was twenty last spring" -and the gratified damsel invited our friend to take a glass of wine and call gain before he left town.

MARSIES PATENT OIL.—This, is, the trame given to a newly invented Oil, for producing light, which has just been introduced to the public by Mr. Barst. Having tried; it ourselves, we can expeak from experience; and, do not besitate to award it a high-order of merit. It is entirely fire from greave or small white burning, find is not high better the too common objection of nhoust all barning failes, that of explosion. It gives a bending and tready light; is much handsomer, than oil, and costs less. For a sight expense, common glass lamps may be fatted with new tubes, and, the oil burn in them.
